

THE FUTURE WORKPLACE

Engaging and retaining parents

Zurich, June 8, 2018 - 09.00-13.00

Geneva, June 28, 2018 – 13.00-17.00

Language: English

Do you struggle to retain talented women and men who decide to start a family? Do you get frustrated when looking at the gender balance of your leadership pipeline? Do you wish you could tap into the Advance network to share experiences and lessons, so you can accelerate your own D&I initiatives?

Join us for an interactive and high-energy workshop with our partner, Thriving Talent, which offers Advance HR members the opportunity to co-create and share knowledge around the topic of “Engaging and retaining parents”.

Target Audience

- HR/Diversity experts
- Heads of Departments and managers with personnel responsibility

Workshop Objective

Participants will have the chance to focus their attention on the collective strengths and assets of the group to address burning questions, passionate issues and great ideas around the topic of “Engaging and retaining parents in the workplace”.

The session is designed to be participative and interactive. You will have the opportunity to discuss, exchange best practices and learn from peers from other Advance companies. You will walk away with new awareness, ideas and tactics to bring about change in your own organisation.

Your Facilitators

Natalie Wilkins and Deborah Croft are co-founders and Managing Partners at Thriving Talent, a talent management consultancy in Switzerland that helps organisations to prosper by enabling inclusive and respectful cultures that empower their employees to thrive at work and at home. They are on a mission to empower one million parents by 2020.
